Chapter 1

Adam

"Mr. Lawler, you were pulled over for going nearly double the speed limit in a school zone, a daycare no less, and found to have an expired license." Adam nodded. It had been a dumb move, but no one had been around. No one had gotten hurt! "As such, this court rules that you are sentenced to 180 days attendance at Sunny Smiles Daycare. The court relinquishes you to your parents for punishment." His eyes widened. Six months at daycare? That wasn't even fair!

Adam began to cry as he reported to the regression facility. He cried as he learned that he would be going from designer boxer briefs to Paw Patrol underoos. He didn't even get pants! He had to walk out of the facility in a t-shirt and his stupid baby undies! He cried when he found out his parents had traded in his sweet ride for a minivan, one which he would always sit in the backseat of. He especially cried when they showed him the car seat that he would be sitting in. In fact, the only thing that made him stop crying was the pacifier his dad pushed between his lips. He sucked on it, trying to take stock of his new situation. His parents alternated between smiling sweetly back at him and exchanging knowing looks. Adam had been so busy with his toddler tantrum, he had completely missed the cases of Huggies in the trunk of the family minivan. The underoos were just for now. Adam was headed back to diapers and it would be long past his sentence that he would be out of them.
